Prelate on RH bill: Church never loses

By Philip C. Tubeza

THE COUNTRY'S leading Catholic prelate yesterday said the Church would eventually emerge triumphant in the debate over the reproductive health (RH) bill.

Manila Archbishop Gaudencio Cardinal Rosales said the Church had never suffered a loss, even as he called for a dialogue between supporters and opponents of the bill that is up for plenary debates next week in Congress.

"[illegible] (The Church has never lost. [illegible])," Rosales said.

"The (Church) of Christ always wins," he added.

Nevertheless, the Manila archbishop called on both sides of the bill to hold meaningful dialogues and not engage in mudslinging.

"It would be better if there is a dialogue, where it's not just one side presenting its views. They should also see the reasons why the position of the Church is like this," Rosales said.

The Church early last week unilaterally ended its dialogue with Malacañang on the RH bill, after the House of Representatives, which is dominated by allies of Mr. Aquino, decided to fast-track the measure.

"It would really be better if we have a dialogue because if it just continues like this, where it seems that people are just showing off how good they are at speaking, then that is not good," Rosales said.

"Let us listen to one another ... but, of course, you know that the RH bill has [illegible]," he said.

Lowly coins worth a lot to schools

DID YOU know that your loose change—the 25-centavo and cheaper coins that you likely ignore and eventually lose under the nightstand or the drawer—could help build a classroom and computer lab.

The Department of Education (DepEd) on Friday received over P1 million from the Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas (BSP), a monetary windfall generated through unlocked low-denomination coins under the "Sibol Barya para sa Eskwela" program.

The amount was raised from almost 5.6 million coins collected by the BSP's National Coin Recirculation Program, which was started in 2008 to collect low-denomination coins and redistribute them nationwide.

"They (BSP) could have just stored or flush out low denomination coins and put them back in circulation, but we are happy that they did this without forgetting to invest in our young students' future by raising funds for the benefit of our public elementary schools," said Education Secretary Armin Luistro in a statement.

The funds will go to selected elementary schools around the country. They would pay for up to eight standard classrooms (at P600,000 each).

The coin collection program provided computers to 29 schools in 15 regions when the project was launched in 2008.

There are some 16.3 billion coins currently in circulation, more than half in 25 cents and lower denominations that are often taken for granted and hardly circulated. The recirculation program brings these coins back to the public, cutting production costs for new ones, which average P1.220 per coin.

Its new 5.75 percent rate is mighty tempting. But the real attraction of HSBC's home loan package is the unique relationship you develop with the world's local bank

IT'S welcome news in a time when the prices of basic necessities don't seem to go anywhere else but up: four months after offering the public a home loan deal too good to pass up, HSBC does it again, slashing its rate from an all-time low of 5.99 percent to an even lower 5.75 percent. "It's exciting to know you can give consumers this opportunity," says Annette W. Tirol, HSBC deputy head of Personal Financial Services. "I'm extremely thrilled for them."

'Miracle' improves prospects for beatification of Pious Worker Sisters founder

PURELY PERSONAL

Josephine Darang

THE BEATIFICATION cause of Venerable Francesco Antonio Marcucci, founder of the Pious Worker Sisters of the Immaculate Conception, is important to us Filipinos because his nuns have been with us since Jan. 17, 1989. The nuns run the St. Raphael Parochial School in Calaca, Batangas where there are 269 elementary schoolchildren enrolled.

Archbishop Soc Villegas also invited them to handle campus ministry in the University of Luzon and University of Pangasinan in Dagupan. Their order is also found in Brazil (21 nuns), Madagascar (11) and Italy (90). Holy Masses in the campus are celebrated every Wednesday with Archbishop Villegas saying Mass once a month.

Amazing healing

The amazing healing of Simonetta Frigeri said reportedly through the intercession of the Venerable Marcucci in July 2002 gives hope to those who pray to him for other needs, but most especially the sick.

Sister Addy Boccacci who runs the Calaca school told me that there have been answered prayers like finding a good job, passing the board exams and finding lost things.

What happened to Simonetta?

Simonetta Frigeri, a 41-year-old Italian woman, gave birth by Caesarian to her third child, a girl named Aurora, on July 2, 2002 at San Filippo Hospital in Rome. The operation was successful, but on July 3, a day after the Caesarian, she contracted a severe abdominal infection that spread to her vital organs. She underwent a series of operations, but her condition worsened until she finally fell into a coma. The doctors did everything they could, but to no avail. She was administered the Sacrament of the Sick.

In desperation, Simonetta's mother went to the Convent of the Pious Worker Sisters of Immaculate Conception where Simonetta studied as a little girl to ask for prayers.

The Mother Superior, Sr. Maria Virgilia Troiani, gave her a small crucifix made out of wood from the altar of Venerable Marcucci to place under the pillow of the patient. Meanwhile, all the Sisters of the Congregation, the relatives and friends of Simonetta prayed the novena invoking the intercession of the founder for her healing.

THE CASE of Simonetta Frigeri who woke up from a coma caused by severe abdominal infection after a caesarian operation in July 2002 is now being studied by the Vatican as a cause for the possible beatification of Venerable Francesco Antonio Marcucci, founder of the Pious Worker Sisters of the Immaculate Conception who run the St. Raphael Parochial School in Batangas.

Soon after, the patient regained consciousness and her condition gradually improved to the surprise of the doctors. This case is currently under verification by the Vatican Congregation for the Causes of Saints. Three medical doctors said "yes" that it was a miracle. Two other doctors will still give their report. After that five cardinals will study the case.

The postulator, Sister Ma. Paola Giobbi, is asking readers to pray that the Venerable Marcucci will be beatified. Simonetta visited the chapel of Venerable Marcucci last November to thank him.

For miracles granted, write to Sister Superior, Pious Worker Sisters of the Immaculate Conception at 28 Highland Drive, Blue Ridge A, Quezon City. Tel. 6471131. For novenas, write to the same address, but enclose a self-addressed stamped envelope for easier mailing.

Soroptimists International

Soroptimists International has been in the Philippines for over 50 years now, improving the lives of women and young girls in the barangays [illegible] medical missions, livelihood projects, and information campaigns to raise the level of their awareness on the issues of trafficking women and girls and teen dating violence.

Mimi Noble, president of Soroptimist International Makati, told me that SIM is working with high schools and Grade Six students in five barangays in Pasay City. To fund such projects, a "silent auction" will take place on March 5, at 3 p.m., at the Formosa Hall of the Architectural Center on Palma St., near Makati.

Donations needed for auction

Chairperson Teresita Gonzales, together with SIM past president Tes Chua, district director Luling Ordoñez, president-elect Bessie Escaloma, SIM directors [illegible] Gaby Ng, Nilda Romo, [illegible] Dolor, [illegible] Dellis and Luzi Cacnio appeal to everyone with generous hearts to donate any item of value which everyone is willing to part with such as jewelry, paintings, artifacts, appliances, decors and other items of value. Interested readers can text Tess Gonzales at 0918-8008108 or Luling Ordoñez at 0917-5333747 or call 8108025.

Pilgrimage to Padre Pio

Fr. Jojo Gonda, parish priest/Rector of the Shrine of St. Padre Pio in Sto. Tomas, Batangas, will lead pilgrims once more to San Giovanni Rotondo on April 25-May 10 to visit the tomb of the saint. The pilgrims will go first to the Chapel of Our Lady of all Nations in Amsterdam, then to Dusseldorf and Cologne where one can see the Shrine of the Holy Magi containing their relics.

Included in the trip is Paris, Nevers, Paray Le Monial, Lyon, Ars where one can see the Shrine of St. Jean Vianney, Lucerne, then Milan.

Also included are the Cathedral of St. Anthony de Padua, then San Giovanni Rotondo. From Padua, the group will proceed to Rome on time for the beatification of Pope John Paul II on May 1, 2011. Text Fr. Jojo at 0917-5272098.

THE WEDDING of Darwin Mago and Andrea de Guzman was a two-day affair for 300 of their closest friends and family in cool, rustic Baguio.

Andrea is the daughter of banker Lorde de Guzman and contractor Rodrigo de Guzman, and Darwin the son of [illegible] couple Zaldy and Rudy Mago.

The two had been sweethearts since they were 13. And on Dec. 16, 2010, they became Mr. and Mrs. Darwin Mago.

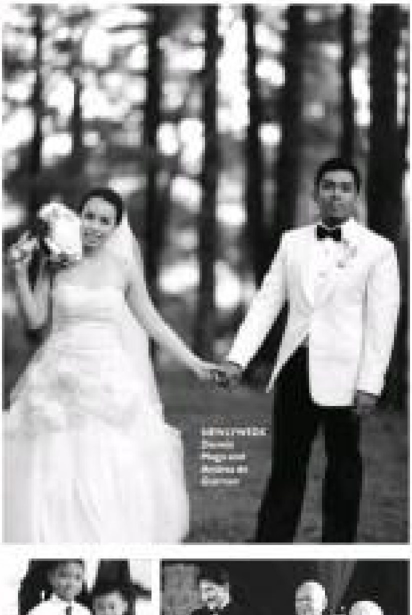

The evening before the wedding, 300 guests were treated to a bonfire at Camp John Hay's Art Park, where Le Chef served picnic-style, serving a feast of [illegible], burgers, [illegible] and wine.

The next day, Dec. 16, the Baguio Cathedral was filled with friends and loved ones, as Andrea, in a [illegible] gown, married Darwin, [illegible] in a Paul Cabral [illegible].

The women in the entourage wore [illegible] and beige Martin Bautista gowns; the groomsmen were in Paul Cabral suits.

The reception was held amid the pine trees, in the crisp Baguio air, at Camp John Hay Golf Club.

The program began with a five-minute fireworks display, which guests watched as they were served cheese and wine at the view deck. Then dinner was served—a six-course feast by Le Chef's Billy King [illegible]. Music was performed by Manila Philharmonic Orchestra.

8 reasons why you should visit Hong Kong Disneyland

With its ongoing 5th anniversary celebration, now is the perfect time to experience the magic

By [illegible]

EVERYBODY NEEDS a touch of magic in their lives, and there's no place in the world more enchanting than Hong Kong Disneyland. It's even more magical this year with its 5th anniversary celebration – which means more fun, more adventures, and more fantasies come true.

Sorcerer Mickey and Tinker Bell weave their magic to lucky visitors, along with the 5,000 strong cast members to commemorate the occasion with the theme "Celebration in the Air." With magical tricks up their sleeves, you won't believe your eyes with boundless possibilities.

But don't just take our word for it. Read on to see 8 of the thousand reasons why you should visit Hong Kong Disneyland as soon as possible.

1. "Flights of Fantasy" Parade

This all-new parade spectacular has a visual hook and a musical hook that is "uplifting, youthful and exciting." The parade brings the performance stage up to 40 feet high, featuring 24 beloved Disney characters and more than 60 performers. This highly interactive parade takes flight every day, promising to "sweep you off your feet" as it takes Disney parades to new heights – literally and figuratively.

2. Tinker Bell's sparkling debut

Making a grand debut is Tinker Bell, Disney's most loved fairy, showering the Sleeping Beauty castle with pixie dust making it glow like no other. It's a showcase of perfect harmony of Disney's creativity and great craftsmanship that makes the attraction more appealing and gorgeous by any standard.

3. "Celebration in the Air" musical collaboration

Local and international music talents teamed over to create the theme song for "Celebration in the Air." With words that go: "All our dreams will light the skies / Guiding us on our way! The world will change before our very eyes." Expect to hear this festive Hong Kong-ish themed song throughout the park. It's a song that anyone can sing and dance to!

4. New celebratory costumes

Popular Disney Characters have all been sprinkled with Tinker Bell's fairy dust and transformed with distinctive new costumes with the signature 5th [illegible] to celebrate the occasion. It's seeing your fave character in a new light.

5. Anniversary collection

More than 200 new commemorative items are available for guests to bring home to complete the Disney experience. The items, which include Tinker Bell, Sorcerer Mickey, Flights of Fantasy and Pixie Dust Castle among others, are exclusively designed for the anniversary celebration. A brand new Castle Street Boutique opened for the exciting merchandise of the season.

6. Celebratory food

During the 5th anniversary "Celebration in the Air" period, celebration food awaits guests in the park and hotels. Crystal Lotus at Hong Kong Disneyland Hotel launches the festive menu, while the park prepares fabulous food in special themed packaging, which in itself becomes take home souvenirs.

7. Anniversary-themed tickets

For the occasion, Hong Kong Disneyland redesigned its tickets to bear the "Celebration in the Air" theme. That gives guests a feel of the festive mood even before they enter the premises of the park and hotels. Yet again, that's another take home souvenir to help you re-live the magic all over again.

8. "The Magic Continues" preview gallery

The Preview Gallery showcases the next phase of exciting new attractions being created at Hong Kong Disneyland. Design sketches, rendering pictures, and layout plans will be exhibited to provide guests with a sneak peek of these attractions in the making. With the addition of more than 30 new attractions in three themed areas, when completed by 2014, the expansion will increase the park's physical footprint by about 23 percent.

And now for our annual 'canonization'–The Oscars

Last year's awards ceremony was virtually the Night of the Shoo-in Stars; tomorrow's is hard to predict, therefore more exciting. It should be another grand occasion for nitpicking and hair-splitting

NAOMI Watts and Josh Brolin in "You Will Meet a Tall Dark Stranger": Is the Academy prejudiced against Woody Allen?

JEFF Bridges and Hailee Steinfeld in "True Grit" are inevitably compared with John Wayne and Kim Darby from the original movie.

And now for our annual 'canonization' . . .

Ensemble casting

And now for our annual 'canonization'

COLIN Firth in "The King's Speech": Oscar win may be a coronation family in "Animal Kingdom," greatly contributes to the pervasive unease in the movie, and emerges as the most ruthless in a predominantly male universe. But she's Aussie, and a stage actress at that, so her win, if ever, would be an upset.

Melissa Leo, as the mother in "The Fighter," has a similar role and milieu as Weaver's, though she's less frightening, somewhat ditzy. Which gives her an extra margin in the viewer's heart.

Some who have been omitted but could have been contenders: Olivia Williams in "The Ghost Writer"; Gemma Jones, for her spaced-out performance as the mother in "You Will Meet a Tall Dark Stranger"; Barbara Hershey in "Black Swan," and that little phenomenon, Faith Wladyka of "Blue Valentine," such performance by a not too honestly seen since—what?—Anna Paquin in "The Piano."

Excellent turns

For Best Supporting Actor, there have major vibes and should be running for Best Actor: Mark Ruffalo in "The Kids Are All Right"; Geoffrey Rush in "The King's Speech"; and Christian Bale in "The Fighter."

Bale has been described as "the most frightening actor in the business." Look what he did to himself to be in character for his role as a junkie in this movie. He is one of the finest of his generation, but, as is often the case with those who employ Method, from Brando through Pacino and DeNiro, he falls into hamming it up.

Rush as Lionel Logue, the unorthodox Australian speech therapist of King George VI, would have been a strong contender for Best Actor. Since we can't fathom the mysterious ways of the Academy, a win for the gentleman for Best Supporting Actor would appease us.

Others could have been contenders: Andrew Garfield and Justin Timberlake in "The Social Network"; Jon Hamm in "The Town"; Pierce Brosnan in "The Ghost Writer."

For Best Actress, Jennifer Lawrence in "Winter's Bone" and Michelle Williams in "Blue Valentine" make excellent turns. They're long shots, though. This is just not their time.

Nicole Kidman has transformed Sissy Spacek's Lady Macbeth character from "In the Bedroom" into the forgiving mother of "Rabbit Hole." But her take is equally compelling, as she invests the role with murderous undertones in her relationship with her son's killer.

Watch how she portrays that sense of abandonment and jealous rage as she dissolves into a puddle of tears upon seeing this teenager out going to the prom with a girl. Her confrontation scene with Aaron Eckhart is a reprise of that scene from "In the Bedroom" that explodes into a series of recriminations between husband and wife (which can also similarly be witnessed in "Blue Valentine").

Annette Bening, as the lesbian mother who finds her family threatened in "The Kids Are All Right," delivers the most centered performance of all.

"TOY Story 3" is a Best Picture contender this year.

JESSE Eisenberg in "The Social Network": Remarkable, as usual.

The utter control with which she tries to maintain herself and her family from the rot in the harebrained situation is quite absorbing.

Natalie Portman gives her physical and mental best as a ballerina in "Black Swan," the portraits, down feathers and all. It's quite refreshing. Portman's a Hollywood sweetheart, and she's very pregnant, so what's a nice way of showing gratitude than handing her a statuette?

Could have been a contender: Tilda Swinton, of course, whose bravura performance in "I Am Love" has pushed one critic to dub her "possibly the supreme film actress of our time."

For Best Actor, last year's winner Jeff Bridges has a thankless job in "True Grit." As Rooster Cogburn, he has the insidious task of undertaking the John Wayne legend.

Jesse Eisenberg, as Facebook founder Mark Zuckerberg in "The Social Network," is remarkable (as in every other movie he's in, from "The Squid and the Whale" to "Holy Rollers," even "Zombieland"). He invests the character with the right blend of intelligence and deceptions, geeky nerd and egomania, as to make him appealing and repulsive at the same time, therefore human.

Eisenberg ranges between the playfulness of youth and the world-weariness of old age, between arrogance and complacency, mischief and pained honesty. He could win, if Colin Firth were not in his way.

Firth, as the royal stammerer George VI in "The King's Speech," delivers a psychologically and physically demanding performance. Every time he starts to speak, your heart skips a beat, you squirm and fidget in your seat, you hold your breath, as you wait for the words.

It's quite emphatic, climaxing when he delivers the first in a series of those famous wartime speeches broadcasting the British doctrine of "rational resistance." His deliberately pained, properly enunciated voiceover finally set to gloomy notes and heartbreaking montage. This, Oscar watchers say, is a coronation.

Arduous performance

Another arduous performance is by James Franco in "127 Hours," as mountain climber Aron Ralston who was trapped in a rock crevice for nearly a week while exploring caves and gorges in 2003. It's a performance that's hard to watch without looking away.

Franco has always been an intelligent actor. He directs, writes short stories, is getting his PhD at Yale, from someone's involvement. But here his performance is propelled more by the impossibility of the situation, than any thespian points.

Could have been contenders: Eckhart in "Rabbit Hole" and Ryan Gosling in "Blue Valentine," both intriguingly limning life into their roles as husbands locked in marital struggles and disenchantment. In these films about love gone terribly wrong, the men are more than convincing; they seem to live the characters as men with good intentions— yet everything they do seems to drag them to the vortex of domestic troubles and desperation.

Gosling, especially, is an actor of smoldering intensity. Which is also true of James Frecheville, introduced in "Animal Kingdom," yet giving a searching turn, particularly in a memorable breakdown scene.
